Course Name

Myers Briggs Type Inventory

Course Description

Understanding how we and others work and how different personal styles interact is key to developing effective working relationships. This interactive workshop helps teams understand individual team members' strengths and differences. Sharing results generates useful discussion and enables the group to create strategies to work together more effectively using this knowledge of types. Successful teams are made up of people with different working styles that complement each other. The Myers Briggs Type Indicator helps people identify these differences and recognise the value this brings to the team.
